WORLD'S PUREST ESSENTIAL OILS TO BE SHARED AT SYDNEY ROADSHOW

June 20 2012

A Leura scientist who recently completed treatment for breast cancer is sharing her knowledge and experience in complementary pure essential oils at an educational roadshow.

Dr Kery O'Neill, who followed a program of surgery, chemotherapy and radiation, discovered international company doTERRA after researching and trialling therapeutic essential oils to support her treatment and recovery.

Dr O'Neill said the interactive roadshow was about sharing the very best of science and the very best of nature.

The passionate educationalist who works with schools, community groups and health professionals as a Neuroeducation consultant, believes there is a need to take responsibility for life choices and understanding our own biology.

"We are all entitled to have the information we need to make decisions in our lives especially when it comes to our own health," Dr O'Neill said.

"While I am trained in the medical model of health, I see the evidence of the great benefit of complimentary approaches working together."
